

New West Writers have been an active organisation in this city for over 25 years. We have produced the following anthologies through those years:

- Life As We Know It
- Our Many Voices
- Saving Seeds

as well as the magazine 'Collage' in 2017, 2018, and 2020.

New West Writers are a group of emerging and established writers, poets, and authors. We meet on the second Saturday of all months in the year via Zoom, though we hope to return to our meetings at NWPL in 2021. At our meetings, we critique each other's work. Members of our group are experienced in providing constructive feedback.

We would like to invite all the aspiring authors of New West and beyond to attend one of our meetings and allow us to provide feedback on your work. All types of writing are welcome - poetry, essays, novels, non-fiction, and children's stories.

For further information, visit either of our blogs at

<https://wordpress.com/stats/day/newwestwriters.com>

or

<https://wordpress.com/stats/day/nwwannounce.wordpress.com>

In 2017 we published the magazine Collage, gave readings of our work at the Heritage Grill, and held an open critiquing session at the Arts Council building in Queen's Park.

In 2018, we published a follow-up to Collage, hosted a Blue Pencil session at the Network Hub in the River Market on 14th April, and provided a critiquing session at the Creative Ink Festival in Burnaby on 19th May.

In 2019, we provided a critiquing session as part of LitFest New West in the Anvil Centre.

In 2020, we published a further follow-up to Collage.